Purpose of the Post

The role’s primary purpose is to serve as a Lecturer in Forensic Psychology (Professional Practice) in order to utilise their practice within their disciplinary field to demonstrate active relationships with external companies and professional bodies within the Department. The post holder will disseminate their practice experience through lectures, workshops and seminars and will be required to engage in CPD within and outside the College. The post holder will be required to publish in a variety of outlets and will engage in activities that continue to recognise their professional expertise outside of the College.

Key Tasks

- Programme leadership and enhancement, ensuring adherence to BPS Accreditation curriculum requirements as relevant.
- Contribute to the development of new programmes of study.
- Contribute to the undergraduate and postgraduate teaching of the Department of Law and Criminology.
- Contribute to the postgraduate taught community, including supervision of doctoral students, as relevant.
- Establish relationships with external partners to enhance knowledge transfer and student placement opportunities.
- Active membership of the Department of Law and Criminology.
- Active membership of professional bodies.
- Engagement with Services and Departments across the College, as required, in order to achieve the key tasks.
- To undertake tasks as required by the Department of Law and Criminology that contribute to the wider School, such as membership of working groups and committees, and participating in student recruitment events such as Open Days.

Other Duties
The duties listed are not exhaustive and may be varied from time to time as dictated by the changing needs of the College. The post holder will be expected to undertake other duties as appropriate and as requested by his/her manager. The post may be required to work anti-social hours on occasions.

The post holder may be required to work at any of the locations at which the business of Royal Holloway is conducted.
